DETAILED ACTION

Election/Restrictions

1. Restriction to one of the following inventions is required under 35 U.S.C. 121:
 - I. Claims 1-44, 52-66 and 97, drawn to a method of monitoring the calibration of a spectrophotometric apparatus, classified in class 436, subclass 171.
 - II. Claims 45-51, drawn to a method of monitoring the calibration of a spectrophotometric apparatus, classified in class 436, subclass 171.
 - III. Claims 67-83 and 96, drawn to a quality control material, classified in class 436, subclass 8.

2. The inventions are distinct, each from the other because of the following reasons:

Inventions I and II are unrelated. Inventions are unrelated if it can be shown that they are not disclosed as capable of use together and they have different modes of operation, different functions, or different effects (MPEP § 806.04, MPEP § 808.01). In the instant case the different inventions have different modes of operation. The method of Group I operates to monitor the calibration of a spectrophotometric apparatus by measuring the absorbance of a quality control material that has an absorbance spectra within the range of 700 nm to 1100 nm, and characterized by a negative slope for a continuous spectral segment of about 5 nm to about 200 nm, whereas the method of Group II does not require a quality control having such characteristics to operate. The method of Group II only requires a quality control material, containing substances therein that absorb electromagnetic radiation, to operate.

Inventions III and I are related as product and process of use. The inventions can be shown to be distinct if either or both of the following can be shown: (1) the process for using the product as claimed can be practiced with another materially different product or (2) the product as claimed can be used in a materially different process of using that product (MPEP § 806.05(h)). In the instant case, the quality control material of Group III can be used in a materially different process of using such as checking the calibration of an instrument that uses means other than spectrophotometry to measure an analyte in a sample. In addition, the method of Group I can be practiced with another and materially different product since the method of Group I does not require a quality control material having an indicator of hemolysis, a simulator of turbidity, bilirubin, etc. therein to operate.

Inventions III and II are related as product and process of use. The inventions can be shown to be distinct if either or both of the following can be shown: (1) the process for using the product as claimed can be practiced with another materially different product or (2) the product as claimed can be used in a materially different process of using that product (MPEP § 806.05(h)). In the instant case, the quality control material of Group III can be used in a materially different process of using such as checking the calibration of an instrument that uses means other than spectrophotometry to measure an analyte in a sample. In addition, the method of Group II can be practiced with another and materially different product since the method of Group II does not require a quality control material having an indicator of hemolysis, a simulator of turbidity, bilirubin, etc. therein to operate.

3. Because these inventions are distinct for the reasons given above and the search required for Group I is not required for Groups II and III, the search required for Group II is not required for Groups I and III, and the search required for Group III is not required for Groups I and II, restriction for examination purposes as indicated is proper.

4. Applicant is advised that the reply to this requirement to be complete must include an election of the invention to be examined even though the requirement be traversed (37 CFR 1.143).
